

My World of Work

Lesson insert

Overview

An activity using myworldofwork.co.uk to link the study of English and the topic of reading to life and work outside of school.

Objectives

As part of a wider lesson, this lesson insert intends to:

- Emphasise that reading for understanding is a skill not only relevant in school
- Highlight the importance of summarising information using your own words

My World of Work activity (15 mins)

- Arrange pupils in groups of two or three
- Go to myworldofwork.co.uk
- Go to my career options
- Assign a job profile to each group
- Ask each group to take notes on the duties and skills required for that role and to note three other key facts

Connect the learning (in the wider lesson)

- Give each pupil one of the text passages attached – this can be done in groups or individually
- Ask each of them to practice summarising the meaning of the passage
- Discuss the skills required to summarise information and why these skills would be important in these jobs

Review and reflect (5 mins)

- Discuss the importance of being able to understand written information when working in any job

Text passages

Emergency call handler is handed this passage and has to deploy the appropriate services:

Woman is hysterical, screaming in the street. There appears to be someone missing, perhaps her child, but this is not clear. There has been an accident, a bus and a lorry are involved but there have been reports of a child's bike being seen nearby. The traffic in and around the location is building up and causing an increasing number of problems.

Retail manager in a shop is given this during a busy Saturday on the run up to Christmas:

We have just received a small amount of this year's must-have toy. We will have to put this out carefully to avoid a rush and therefore avoid injury to ourselves and customers. There have been reports that staff have been attempting to keep some of these toys for themselves and/or family; company policy states this is not permitted and any member of staff caught doing this will lose their job immediately. This must be made clear to all staff involved and this notice should only be shared with staff directly involved in the marketing of this product.

Vetinary nurse has to relay this message to the vet whilst he is operating:

The police will be bringing in one of their dogs which has been attacked by a criminal with a weapon. The dog is in a bad way and has many injuries. The policeman on the phone said the dog was breathing but had wounds on both the abdomen and back. The abdominal wound was still bleeding but they had managed to stop the bleeding on its back. Their estimated time of arrival would be 1.20pm.

Trade union representative has to take staff concerns to management:

Staff believe that the environment they are working in is unsafe for many reasons:

- The floors are not covered in a non-slip material
- When asked to stay late, the corridor lights are extinguished and staff are expected to exit their work space using torches only
- There has been no safety equipment made available for staff working upstairs
- They feel they will have to take action if their concerns are not taken into account now

A journalist is handed this by her editor:

The prisoner who escaped from the local jail has been spotted at a housing estate two miles away. He was imprisoned for assault and robbery which he claims he did not do. His wife recently remarried and has been sighted near the estate; it is assumed she lives there with her new husband.

The police want to make it clear to the public that they have not to approach him if he is seen.
